

Exclusive Right of Burial in Roadé Cemetery

- The Exclusive Right of Burial to a grave or cremation plot in Roadé Cemetery can be purchased either at the time of an interment or in advance to reserve a plot.
- By purchasing the Exclusive Right of Burial, the purchaser does not own the land or plot itself, but they do have the right to say who is buried in that plot or to be buried in that plot themselves.
- The owner of the Right also has the right to apply to have a memorial placed on that plot, or if applicable has the right to apply to have an inscription added to that memorial.
- If the Right is purchased at the time of an interment, the fee will be based on whether the deceased qualifies for residency fees or not, but if the Right is purchased in advance then the fees will be based on whether the purchaser satisfies the residency rules or not.
- A Deed of Grant will be issued to the purchaser. This Deed will last for 100 years from the date it is issued.
- Only the owner of the Exclusive Right of Burial has the aforementioned rights. Following the demise of the owner, no one else has the right to be buried in that plot or to apply to have a memorial or additional inscription added without the ownership being transferred (Transfer of Rights).
- You may wish to consider multiple ownership e.g. husband/wife; husband/wife and a son/daughter; two or three siblings etc. As long as there is one surviving owner of the Exclusive Right of Burial when the plot is full (two coffins or two cremation caskets/urns as applicable) there will still be a living owner who has the right to place a memorial on the plot or to add an inscription to that memorial.
- If there are multiple owners, however, they will all have an equal right to be buried in that plot until such time as it is full.
- Also, should there be multiple ownership of Exclusive Right of Burial, any application for an interment or a memorial/additional inscription would need to be made by all those named on the Deed.
- Should the Exclusive Right of Burial not be purchased until an interment is taking place, it would normally be expected that the surviving spouse and/or next of kin would be named as owner.
- Should an interment be due to take place but the owner of Exclusive Right of Burial is deceased and the person being interred was not that owner, it will be necessary to arrange for the Transfer of Rights to take place by means of a legal process such as applying for probate or letters of administration before any application relating to the grave plot or memorial can be considered. This lengthy legal process would considerably delay opening a grave plot for an interment or placing a memorial on a plot but could be avoided if there is still a living owner.

- It is possible to add an owner or to transfer ownership whilst the owners or sole surviving owner is still alive by means of completing a simple form.

Please Note:

As owner of the Right to a grave you are responsible for informing the Council of any change of address. If a problem occurs with the grave or the monument and we cannot contact you, we have the right to take whatever action is necessary to rectify the problem. If this involves a cost to the Council, this may be levied against the grave, and must be paid before any more interments can take place.
